Reckless Driving Charge Turns Into 5-Hour Standoff with Police

Mike Wright, 26, of Grayling, voluntarily came out of a downstairs apartment at 809 Michigan Ave. early Tuesday morning after refusing to surrender to police for close to six hours.

The standoff started about 8:40 p.m. when a reckless driver reportedly almost ran a vehicle occupied by Grayling firemen off the road. The firemen said the reckless driver also almost ran over a pedestrian, according to a Grayling City Police report. The firemen followed a suspect to the 809 apartment and called the Grayling City Police to report the reckless driving complaint.

A city policeman received no answer at the door. Wright's wife then tried to call him out of the apartment. One of the firemen, who is also a police officer, noticed Wright through a window at this time and he appeared to be approaching the door with a rifle, the city police report said.

Grayling City Police Chief Pete Stephan said everyone backed off at this point and soon after city patrolman Dennis Long began talking with Wright over the phone. Stephan said Long was persistent during the long standoff and did an excellent job in persuading the suspect to come out. Wright came out at about 2:30 a.m. without any weapon. During the entire standoff no physical threats were made by Wright, Chief Stephan noted. A rifle and a knife were found in the apartment after police arrested the suspect. He was lodged in the county jail on charges of reckless driving. Other charges may be pursued, said Stephan.

DNR Finds No Evidence of Chemical Dumping By Bear Archery in Millpond

By Don Geiss

The Bear Archery Company has been accused of dumping drums of benzene, PCB and resins in the Millpond while the company was located in Grayling, but thus far there is no evidence that the materials were dumped there.

According to reports of investigations by Department of Natural Resources Environmental Officer Sgt. Greg Katalenich, Calvin (Rusty) Gates contacted DNR officials concerning the dumping. He told the officer that a friend who wished to remain anonymous witnessed 100 to 200 drums of the substances dumped and buried in a stump pond behind the "old Fred Bear Company."

An interview between Gates and the officer occurred on March 31, 1986, and the investigation was continued until April 29, 1987, when Katalenich in his report stated that for the purposes of law enforcement the case should be considered closed.

The site, claimed to have been the Millpond dump location, was in the area where the boardwalk and observation platform have recently been constructed. The officer reported visiting that site with Gates and finding "demolition type materials (concrete, brick, metal, wood, etc.)" He also reported that there were three or four 55 gallon drums in a partially decomposed condition sitting on top of the ground along the edge of the stump pond. He noted that no odors or suspicious oil sheens were observed.

There was ample testimony by the individuals that the officer interviewed to indicate that liquid materials from Bear Archery were dumped into at least three landfills that were active at that time (1958-67). Sources indicate that it was not unusual then for most companies to dump wastes in any local landfill because today's environmental concerns were not as pronounced. The persons interviewed dumped waste at a landfill behind the Jack Millikin building, at the junction of North Down River Road and Stephan Bridge Road, and at the Grayling

City Dump south of town.

Katalenich's report indicated that he visited the Millpond site along with Brian Reicks, DNR Groundwater Quality Division. They observed solid materials at the site and took three sediment samples. They were tested for PCB content, the officer stated, and "revealed none above the detection limits."

A publication that circulates statewide has indicated that Fred Bear has always been vehemently opposed to removing the dam at the end of the Millpond. It was in a context suggesting Bear thought the dam removal would let down the water, thus exposing the waste that was dumped. When asked last week about the dumping at the site, Bear forcefully stated that the company never dumped waste of the type indicated by the anonymous source in the Millpond.

Investigation by the Avalanche reveals that there is concrete, asphalt and metal remnants showing on the surface in that area near M-72 West. Reliable sources have indicated that at least some of the material is waste from the old County Courthouse. Another source stated that material from the old dump at the site of the Little League field was hauled as fill to the Millpond site.

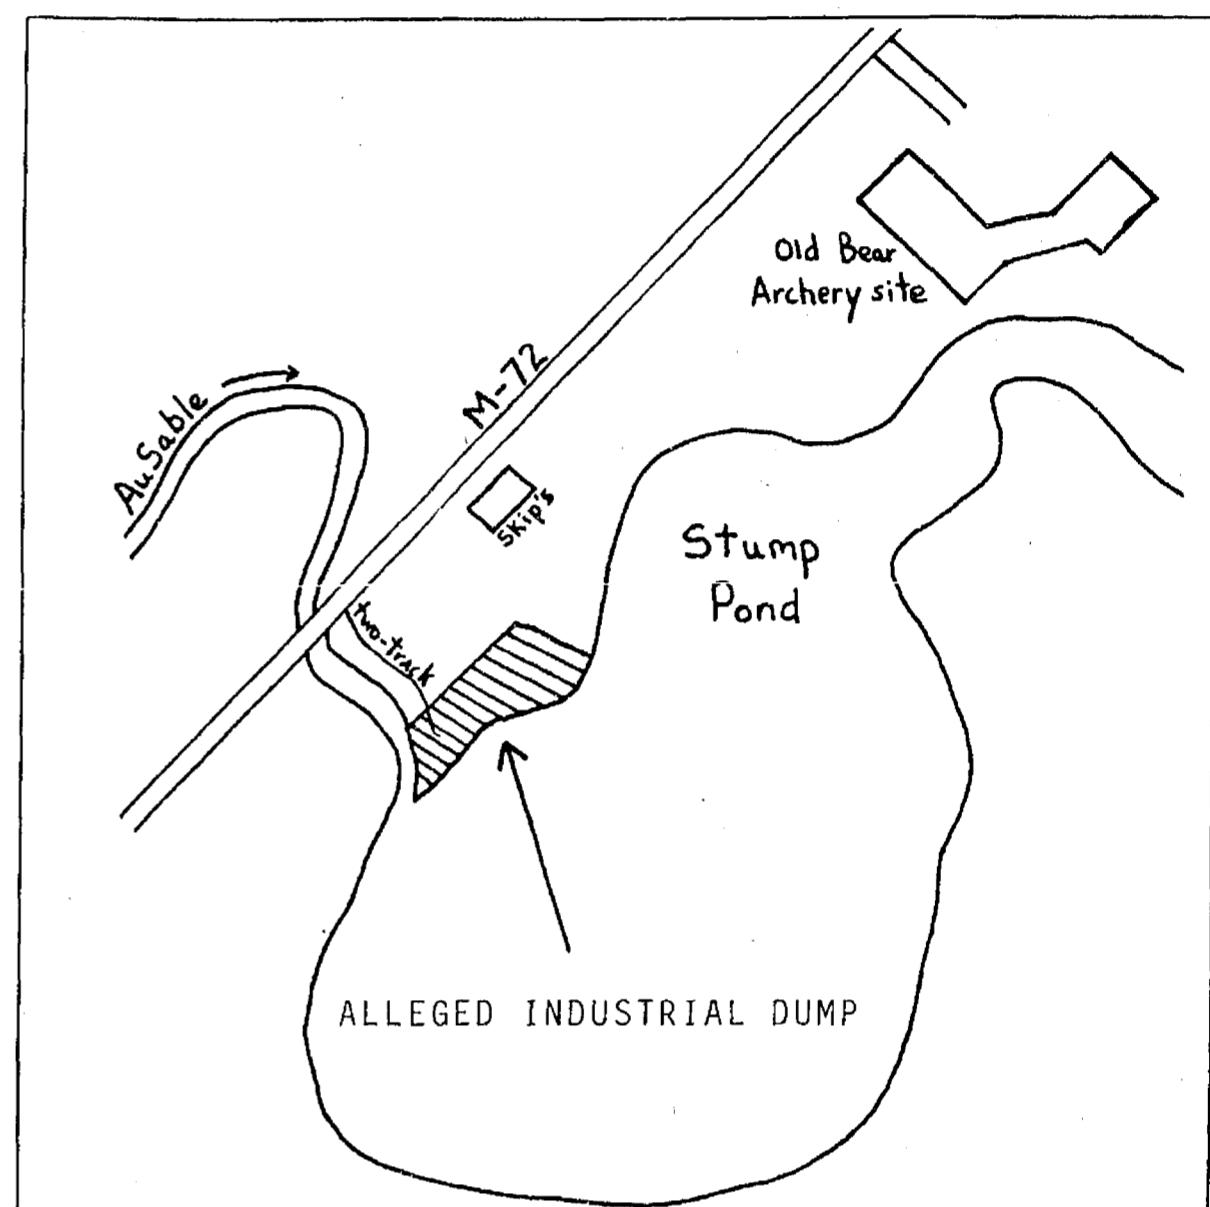

Skip and Gail Madsen, who own the property on which most of the filling took place, have stated that they are not aware of any chemical dumping at the site. They point out that there most certainly was dumping of fill material there since at one time water came up to M-72.

"We have been here for a long time and have not been affected by any contaminants," the Madsens said. They also draw attention to the fact that the vegetation looks healthy and there are no signs on the surface of the ground that could suggest contamination.

Today there is a boardwalk and observation platform on a portion of the reclaimed land which will permit the public for the first time an open view of the Millpond and its marsh animals. The Madsens said if the area is contaminated, the wildlife has shown no sign of being affected and many large trout have been caught in the area.

3 Options Left For Landfill After Cap Grant Refused

The Crawford-Otsego County Landfill application for funding to cap the old portion of the property has been turned down by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The application through the Clean Michigan fund requested $353,300 to cover the area with impervious material as ordered by the DNR.

Crawford County commissioners discussed the matter at their recent meeting. They were informed about reasons for the refusal by Jeannette Kitchen who is also a member of the Clean Michigan Commission.

Kitchen said that the major reason for the turn-down was that the new disposal area is connected directly to the old dump. She noted that for some reason the failure to leave a gap between the two areas was considered as sufficient reason to refuse the grant.

Kitchen commented that the applications from various sources in the state are channeled through the Clean Michigan Commission and they make recommendations for each to the Natural Resources Commission (NRC). They acted upon the applications on August 6 and refused to fund the 22-acre capping project.

DNR representatives indicated that there were a total of 30 grant applications worth about $8.1 million. They said only $1.8 million is available through the Clean Michigan Fund. They noted that more money will be available in October and the application can be resubmitted then.

Gaylord Attorney Jim Cotant is the legal representative for the landfill authority. He is quoted as saying that there is no question of whether the landfill will be capped since the DNR has ordered it. There are three options to pursue for funding. The application can be resubmitted. The matter of funding can be taken to court since it may be covered by the Headlee Amendment. That law states that the state must pay for any program which they initiate that will cost other units of government money to implement.

The third option would be to take a millage issue to the citizens of both counties.

Cotant observed however that the landfill authority has absolutely no intention at this time to ask property owners for a tax increase. He said that the DNR should pay for the capping since it has made the landfill a model for the state and promoted the idea of other counties using the facility.

DNR officials indicate that if nothing is done to cap the landfill they can initiate enforcement action. Since a court action could force the counties to do the job, presumably the bill would then still be passed along to taxpayers.

500 Attend Trappers' Convention

Trappers from all over northern Michigan turned out last weekend at the Hanson Recreation area for a weekend of business, contests and enjoyment.

Officials estimated that between 400 and 500 persons attended the functions at one time or another. They called attention to the poor weather as evidence that their membership is made up of hearty souls.

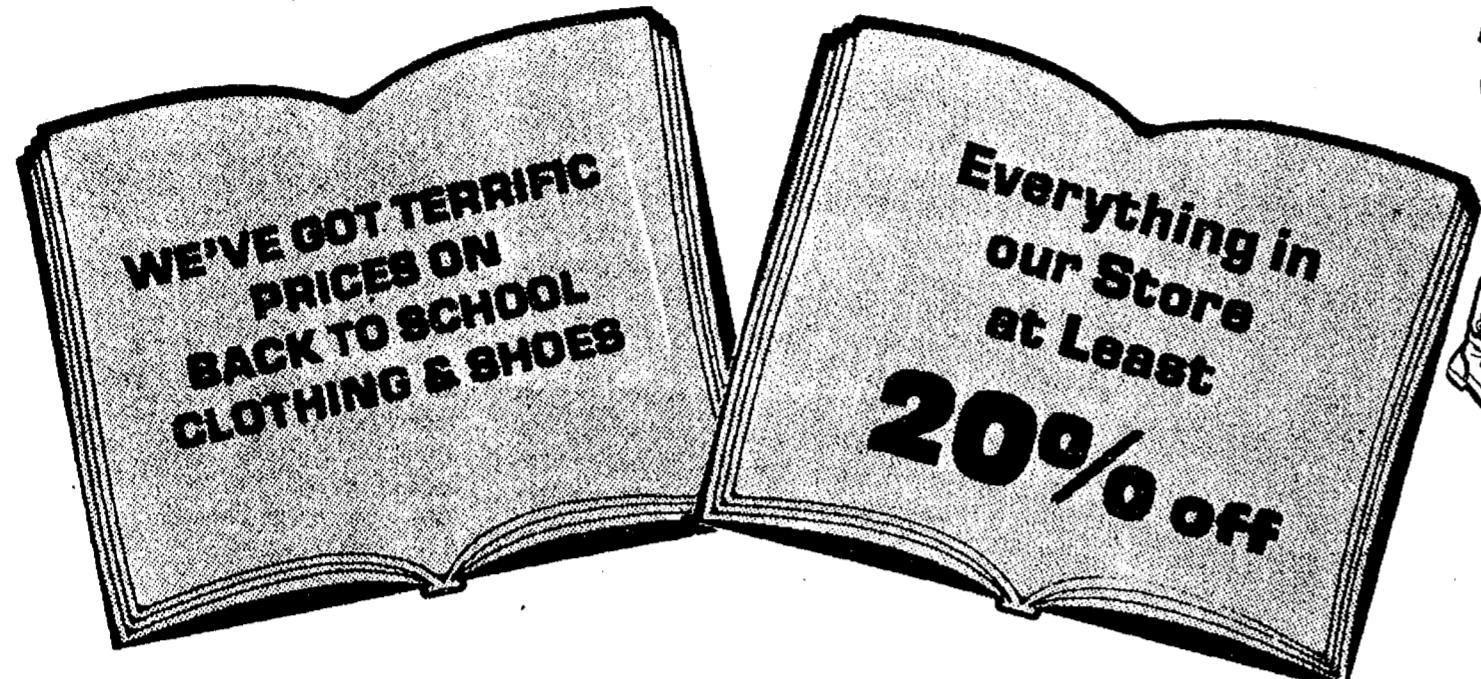

About 20 associated businesses displayed their wares at tables set up inside the building. Some of them even braved the rain and were doing business outdoors, although they had canvas ready to cover the tables.

Ducks Unlimited Hunt & Dinner Will Raise Conservation Project $$$

According to Wayne Casler, DVM, Chairman of the Grayling Ducks Unlimited Committee, folks from Grayling and surrounding areas interested in participating in a practical conservation program will be given an opportunity to do so come August 29, 1987.

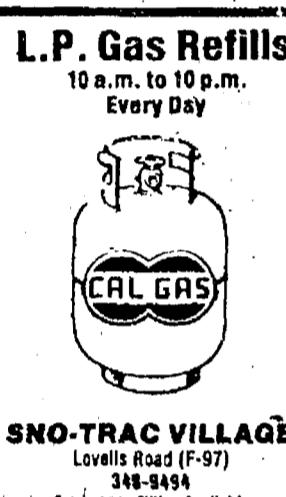

As a local representative for the international waterfowl conservation organization

Casler said, "When it comes to conservation, there are a lot of good people out there with good intentions who would really like to make a positive difference in how wildlife is perpetuated on this continent, but just don't know how to go about it."

Casler went on to say that he volunteered to help raise funds for Ducks Unlimited because of the organization's impressive habitat track record. Since 1987, Casler said that this private, nonprofit organization has constructed more than 1,800 wetland projects throughout Canada - a country where over 70% of North America's ducks and geese are produced and where Federal Duck Stamp dollars can't be spent. As a result, Ducks Unlimited has reserved nearly three million habitat acres and created more than 11,000 miles of crucial nesting shoreline for the waterfowl. Concluding his remarks about the importance of DU's conservation effort, Casler stated, "Our Committee will soon be calling on conservation-minded individuals within the community to help support our DU fund-raising Clay-Duck Hunt and Dinner scheduled for August 29, 1987, with the Shoot to be held at the Grayling Sportsman Club at 12:00 Noon, and the Dinner to be held at the Camp Grayling Officer's Club at 6:00 p.m. We're going to have a lot of good food, good prizes and good fun for everyone, and those who attend can rest assured the dollars we raise are going to a very good cause."

Casler said he would be more than happy to talk to anyone interested in DU's grassroots conservation program and can be reached at 517-348-8622.

Letters to the Editor

Opinions

With a large number of Letters to the Editor received this week (so many that some will have to be published next week) the space normally used by this column will be cut to allow more letters to be published.

One note on Letters to the Editor: Many writers request that their name not be used in the paper. I feel if someone has an opinion worth publishing, they ought to feel strong enough about it to use their name. Most of the time we require a name attached to a published letter.

We do allow an exception or two to the rule. If a writer feels there might be repercussions at his or her job because of a published letter, we do allow an unsigned letter to be printed.

Each letter is handled individually. If we feel the viewpoint is worthwhile reading for Avalanche customers, we will allow a letter to be published anonymously.

All letters that are sent to the Avalanche must be signed with an address or phone number so we can check with the author. Even letters requesting their name not be printed must be signed.

Role of Voluntarism Endangered

by Richard Milliman

THE VETERANS OF FOREIGN Wars National Home in Eaton Rapids may go out of existence after 62 years of caring for needy families — and the taxpayer may be at fault.

Delegates to the VFW national convention in late August will ponder a recommendation by a special study committee to "get out of the child care business." That would mean closing the Eaton Rapids Home, which opened in 1925.

More than 200 youngsters and parents used to live at the home; the number has fallen to 76 children and 11 parents at a recent count.

WHAT'S THE REASON for declining use of the home by veterans and their families?

Well, there probably are several reasons. Communication may be one — not too many veterans may be aware of the Eaton Rapids home and how it could help.

Unfortunately, there seems to be a never-ending supply of war veterans in this country. World War I veterans are almost gone now; World War II veterans are all past 60 and aging. Korean War veterans are nearing retirement age.

But Vietnam War veterans and their families are ripe candidates to use the VFW home. And who is confident there won't be even more veterans in the future?

But the main reason for the decline at Eaton Rapids appears to be competition — and competition which is supported by taxpayer dollars.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT for the VFW home comes from VFW members through such efforts as sale of Christmas stamps, VFW poppies, interest on an endowment fund, and special events staged by VFW posts, auxiliaries, and the Military Order of Cooties, the fun branch of VFW.

The special study committee, which recommended closing the home, reported that unlike when the home was started, there now exists a wide variety of social service programs available to care for people who need help, including needy veterans and their families.

And most of these emerging social programs are paid for by the public treasury, on the local, state and federal levels.

"Child welfare programs have passed from the private to the public domain," the VFW study committee reported.

It's true, and in many ways, it's too bad.

Times have changed, and so have concepts of child care and public welfare programs. Government has moved more and more into these fields, as well as many others. That's a big reason taxes keep going up and up, and the federal government had to increase its debt ceiling the other day to $2.3 trillion.

THE VFW HOME at Eaton Rapids is an example of voluntarism at its best. The program works ... it helps people ... and it's financed by individuals and by private organizations, not by governments.

Many who recognize the importance of voluntarism recite a formula that goes something like this:

The best solution to a problem is self-help. If you can't solve your own problem, then turn to family and friends. If that doesn't work, then call on your community, your church, and your private organizations (such as the VFW). Then, and only then, should you turn to government.... and then, first, to the government closest at hand, then to state government, and only as a last resort to federal government.

Many individuals still practice this formula, and so do many organizations, such as church and private organizations like the VFW and others.

But many do not. Many people — and the trend seems to be getting stronger — turn first to government to solve any problem, and preferably to the biggest government around, namely the federal government.

That's too bad, too. Most often, that brings an expensive solution ... one that frequently doesn't even fit the problem in the first place, and tends to recruit "clients" for the new program, with "problems" they never knew they had before.

Let's hope voluntarism doesn't die completely. Clearly it's in danger.

Community Has Right To Quality Care

I hope my letter will be one of many sent in response to Don Geiss's article on Mercy Hospital cutbacks. Many of us talked about writing to our local papers or trying to increase interest in our local communities regarding our problem but we were afraid of reprimands and job loss.

The nurses, technicians, housekeepers, kitchen help, office workers, etc. - live in our local communities, not just work there. We are affected by these changes not just as employees of Mercy Hospital but as consumers as well.

We want our communities to know that we as individuals care deeply about what is happening. We are taking care of our friends, our neighbors and our relatives when we work at Mercy Hospital.

I further challenge the people in these communities to talk to the Hospital Board of Directors. Who is administration of Mercy Hospital held accountable to? Is it the local communities represented by the Board or is it a corporate board in Farmington? If it is the board in Farmington, what is their bottom line? Is it the eventual closing or selling of Grayling Mercy? Is it strict middle of the night with sudden excruciating chest pain - Burns is a world away.

What is the answer? The people are! We have a right to expect not just minimal medical care. We have a right to expect and to receive excellent medical care. We have great doctors here. I'm on the inside and I can assure you our doctors are not minimum quality - they are excellent quality.

I challenge all of the physicians in the communities of Grayling, Roscommon, and Houghton Lake to demand that administration provide them with the means to practice with quality at Mercy Hospital.

I further challenge the people in these communities to talk to the Hospital Board of Directors. Who is administration of Mercy Hospital held accountable to? Is it the local communities represented by the Board or is it a corporate board in Farmington? If it is the board in Farmington, what is their bottom line? Is it the eventual closing or selling of Grayling Mercy? Is it strict ly a dollars and cents bottom line?

I may not have an M.B.A. but I do feel that a hospital can be fiscally solvent and administer quality care at the same time. Cutting vital services is not an answer. To be fiscally solvent you need to find where the waste is. Where are the "areas" of loss of revenue? Attack the problem not the symptoms.

I know that I care deeply about our community and that the majority of the people living here feel that way too. I know that the doctors feel that way. Don't forget - of all the places they could have settled they chose to come to this community to live and to practice.

If segments of this community could take on the challenges of the DNR regarding fishing; the government regarding the problems with National Guard expansion; the school tax problems, they certainly should be able to face the challenge of health in our community.

1) Let your physician know how you feel. Let him/her know that you want to live and to practice.

2) Call or write to members of the hospital board of directors. Tell them how you feel. They represent you to administration.

Recently the Board of Directors of Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital fired its President, C.E.O., and Vice President. I don't believe our board has that power but they should be able to hold administration accountable for their actions.

This is not the time to be passive. The hospital should be there when you need it.

20-Year Volunteer Quits After Recent Hospital Changes

Dear Editor:
At last - a comment about our hospital in the Avalanche, thanks Don Geiss.

As an auxiliary for almost the entire twenty years we have lived here, I have seen many changes at Mercy Hospital, but none as drastic as those of the last few years.

Many employees have left whom I had known through my volunteer work.

Recent changes at Mercy are a concern to our entire community and many people have expressed their thoughts to me knowing of my volunteer work there.

My own decision is to no longer be an auxiliary. Volunteer work is one thing but doing the work of a discharged or resigned employee or one whose hours have been reduced is another thing.

Many Hospital Employees Have Given 100 Percent

Dear Editor:
In the column by Don Geiss last week, he evidently forgot to mention the many long term employees of Mercy Hospital, who over the years, have, with dedication given 100% service to the patients. I speak of such people as Roberta Sawyer, Mary Noa, R.N., Mrs. B. Hilton, R.N. et al. However something else he did not mention, and should, is the fact that we do not need to travel to Petoskey or Traverse City. The Otsego Memorial Hospital in Gaylord provides care, second to none, and with such excellent doctor care there too. Who could ask for anything more?

Sincerely,

Marjorie Vallad

It's Time To Do Something About Guard Behavior

To the Editor:
Thursday evening I was in a local downtown business. In trying to leave the store, I found the aisle was blocked by three National Guards who were arguing very loudly with each other. I asked them to excuse me so I could get through. They moved, but one guard hit me very hard in the middle of the back. The other guard used very vulgar profanity to me.

When it becomes unsafe for a 64-year old woman to go to a store by herself, then it is time something was done about the National Guards! Perhaps they should be confined to camp.

After all, they are supposed to be here for training to defend our country, not assault old ladies or get into fights and drunken brawls. Now I can understand why so many local people are against the National Guards.

Social Services — More than General Assistance

By Don Geiss

Contrary to the opinions of many people, Social Services does not deal exclusively with clients on General Assistance or, as it was once known, welfare.

Conversations we have had or overheard about the subject dwell on the help for the needy, and while this is a laudable part of the service, it only scratches the surface.

Most people are also familiar with Medicaid which furnishes medical care to the needy. It is, after all, the largest single item in the Department of Social Services (DSS) budget. But added to that are a host of other valuable programs.

If there is a report of an abused spouse, child or senior citizen, there is a specialist who will be on the job attempting to protect the individual.

A needy person who requires hospital treatment in another town and has no transportation will also find help through the Crawford County DSS Volunteer program. That aspect of assistance may also be used for an individual who needs rush transportation for any valid purpose.

Often there is an individual who is not capable of managing the money for a household and a specialist is under contract to teach that person how to live within a budget. The same thing is true of managing a proper family diet. There is someone who can be called upon in certain instances to provide advice.

Money is provided through the state DSS budget to fund a youth runaway prevention and counseling program.

Much of the budget for the Kenquest teen pregnancy home in the county comes from the DSS budget. The DSS is a major supporter of the Riverhouse Spouse Abuse Center and has assisted in passing along funds when that organization is eligible.

Employment and training programs are an important part of the DSS because the ultimate goal of a general assistance plan is to help clients achieve self sufficiency.

The county budget for DSS has made it possible to work with Crawford-AuSable Schools and fund a play which teaches elementary level students about good and bad touching.

There are many more areas where the DSS steps into the picture and lends a helping hand. It is our pleasure to work with the dedicated professionals in the DSS field as a volunteer. If a person or a family has a problem, those folks are sincere about assisting in discovering a solution.

SEND FORM 3579 TO: P.O. BOX 490 — GRAYLING, MICHIGAN 49738

Dear Editor,
I was saddened to read about the fourteen-year-old boy who was struck by a car recently. As an avid cyclist, I realized that it could have been me and very nearly has been on several occasions.

Lately, I have been run off the road and startled by honking motorists. Drivers ought to be more cautious when approaching a biker. When there is oncoming traffic they should slow down and wait for the road to clear before carefully passing a biker. This practice seems to be the exception rather than the rule, nowadays. Everyone seems to be in such a hurry. Quite often cars and bikes pass too closely and too fast, squeezing alongside of me and oncoming traffic.

Several things can cause a biker to lose control of his steering. For example, a rock tossed up by a passing truck, a flat tire, or more likely barking dogs running out from the roadside to chase him. Also, pot holes, broken glass and gravel can cause a biker to steer unpredictably out into the road. The law entitles bikers to three feet of the road but when passing a bicyclist, you should expect the unexpected.

Bikers have responsibility too, for their own safety.

They should wear protective clothing, never ride at dusk, and always ride with the direction of traffic.

In the event, a biker is hit by a car, the potential for injury is much greater when struck head-on than moving in the same direction. Proper use of hand signals when turning can also prevent accidents.

The young man who was hit last weekend was seriously injured. Last month, another youth was killed when he turned into the path of an oncoming car. Please, take these incidents to heart and practice safety and control, whether you drive or bike on our county roads.

Anyone who operates a boat livery in the State of Michigan must follow certain procedures which insure the safety of their client.

First of all, they register with the Michigan State Waterways Commission annually. The Waterways Commission has adopted minimum requirements for the safety and well being of the watercraft users, including maximum capacity and horsepower limits and conformance with recognized marine practices.

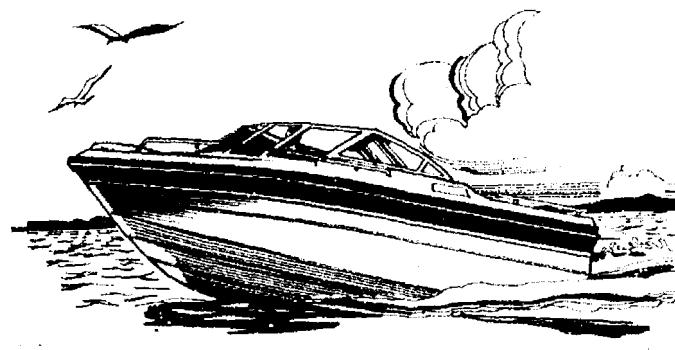

Before a boat or canoe livery can rent a watercraft, it must be safety inspected. Ordinarily this is done by the County Sheriff's Department. Once this safety inspection is completed, a certificate of compliance is issued to the livery operator.

This certificate is to be prominently displayed. Also, the Sheriff Department representative will affix a metal tag to each watercraft to indicate it has been inspected.

The owner/operator of a livery shall not rent a watercraft that has not been inspected, tagged, and registered. Neither shall a livery owner/operator rent a boat or canoe when the capacity or horsepower rating is exceeded. The livery owner is also required to furnish all required safety equipment. The person who rents the watercraft from a livery operator is responsible for maintaining those safety requirements.

Any time you rent a canoe or boat from a livery, be sure it is registered, safety inspected and has all necessary safety equipment.

KCC Offers PN, ADN Nursing Degree Programs

Kirtland Community College's one year certificate (PN) and two year Associate in Applied Science (ADN) degree programs in Nursing provide students with the education necessary to take the National Council of Licensure Examinations for LPN and RN licensure. These programs provide this specialized education both in a classroom and a laboratory setting. Students also gain experience in clinical setting utilizing various health care agencies such as hospitals, extended care facilities, and physicians offices and clinics.

In the Practical Nursing Program, nursing theory classes are held on campus two days a week for approximately six hours each day throughout the three semester program. The students study the "normal" human (anatomy, physiology, nutrition, growth, and development), foundations of nursing (which includes the scientific principles underlying nursing care skills and the practicing of these skills), and relationships that deal with the student as a nurse. After studying the "normal" human, the student will study variations from normal, including the family during the child bearing years, and the disease process in both children and adults. The practical nursing program serves as the first year of Kirtland's Associate Degree Nursing (RN) program.

Kirtland's ADN program supports career mobility in its laddered program approach. The laddered approach builds upon previously acquired knowledge. Therefore, the first year of the two-year curriculum is that of a basic practical nursing program. The program is geared to accommodate the working practical nurse, with courses in the program generally built around a three day per week schedule.

Admission to Kirtland does not guarantee admission into the practical nursing program. A series of tests covering mathematics and English must be completed, along with the National League for Nursing's Practical Nursing Test. Other requirements regarding chemistry, biology and mathematics courses must also be met. The student entering the ADN Level II program must be a licensed practical nurse.

If you would like further information on Kirtland's Practical Nursing or Associate Degree Nursing Program, contact Mrs. Katherine Grosser, Director of Health Occupations, or the Admissions Office at 275-5121, or 1-800-433-2517.

Donelle Bentley Keating, of Muskegon, welcomed her mother back home with a weekend visit. Carin Bentley spent six weeks in Europe, she visited her sister and husband for three weeks and accompanied them on their vacation to Bavaria in the German Alps. While there, they drove to Austria and spent three days in Tivoli, Zillertal, and Seefeld, then in Garmisch (Bavaria) they climbed the Alps and went on daily walks and a tour to Munich where they spent two days.

Bentley went back to her birthplace where her sister lives and attended a class reunion, her uncle's 75th birthday party, and made more visits to friends and relatives. The last two weeks she spent with her brother and his wife. While there, they settled her late mother's estate and came across a document that traced their ancestors on her father's side back to the year 1767 and on her mother's side to 1796. Bentley said that was the highlight of the trip, but she also says there is no better place to be than the beautiful U.S.A.

While visiting her mother, Donelle told her about her recent graduation from the Casablanca modeling school in Grand Rapids. She will be employed as a part time model, in jr. petites, at Jacobsons of Grand Rapids. Q: Who were the winners?

A: Sally Ann Olson of Ithaca emerged as the top winner, capturing the $50,000 prize. Keith Casey of Allen Park won the $10,000 second prize, while Joel S. Drake of Glen Arbor, Inman Mansour of Oak Park, Robert H. Reinholz of Livonia and Anna Waicki of Jackson each won $2,500 awards.

A: Yes. Beginning July 27, Daily 3 game players were offered three weeks of bonus rounds.

Q: How did those bonus rounds work?

A: One night during each of those weeks, players matching the three-digit number in the order drawn were awarded $600 instead of $500 for $1 winning straight bet tickets. Winning 50 cent wagers paid $300 instead of $250.

4 Crawford County Youths Win Special Olympic Medals

Four Crawford County youths returned home with medals from the 1987 International Special Olympics Summer Games held at Notre Dame University July 31 to Aug. 9. Leading the local athletes were the performances of Tom Ferguson and Chris Whaley who each captured gold medals in the soccer skills competition. Chris Whaley turned in a fine individual effort scoring 3 goals. A total of 38 teams competed in the soccer competition, 20 foreign squads and 18 from the United States.

While competition was the main focus of the teams trip, a variety of other events were also highlighted. The athletes attended an international dance, a county fair and numerous sports clinics. A great deal of time was spent cheering on the other 80 athletes from Michigan. There athletes competed in softball, basketball, bowling, track, gymnastics and swimming.

A favorite pastime for everyone involved was meeting the athletes from other nations and trading pins and t-shirts with them. Many local athletes returned home with numerous items from countries they had never heard of before.

A major part of the event was participating in the opening ceremonies at Notre Dame stadium. Before a national television audience and 40,000 spectators in the stands, the local Olympians joined 4,000 other special athletes from around the world to celebrate the opening of the games.

Ever wonder why football is called the "gridiron" sport? ...Years ago, football fields had yard lines going from sideline to sideline as they do today — but they also had lines going the other way, from goal line to goal line, to mark off areas where players had to lineup under the rules of those days. The effect of lines going both ways made the field look like a gridiron and early sportswriters started calling football the gridiron sport...That name remains today even though those old grid lines have long since gone.

Oddy enough, a man once won the Wimbledon tennis championship WITHOUT playing in the final...Sidney Wood of the U.S. was the 1931 Wimbledon champ in men's singles, but he never played in the final...His opponent got sick before the match and defaulted, giving the title to Wood.

Did you know that a set of twins once played side-by-side in big league baseball? ...Johnny and Eddie O'Brien, who are twin brothers, played second base and shortstop at the same time for the Pittsburgh Pirates between 1953 and 1956.

Group Offers Property Relief, Sales Tax Increase Plan .

By Warren M. Hoyt
Michigan Press Association

A plan providing $1.2 billion in property tax relief while raising the state sales tax has been approved by the Property Tax Subcommittee of the School Finance Committee.

The plan, which would also provide funds for improving quality of education and decrease inequities between school districts, will be presented to the full commission for its work session later this month, with final presentation to the Board of Education scheduled for early September.

Under the plan, which would require voter approval, the state sales and use tax would be increased from 4 cents to 6 cents on the dollar on all but residential utilities costs, resulting in about $1.38 billion in additional revenue to be earmarked for education.

To balance the increase in revenue, local school boards would be allowed to levy up to 18 mills on residential and agriculture property without voter approval, with voter approval allowing levies up to 38 mills, instead of the current cap of 50 mills.

Business and commercial property tax would also be addressed in the plan, with a state-levied, permanent rate of 23 mills.

The revenue from the 23 mills would be part of the state school aid fund.

Ed Farhat, chair of the subcommittee, and several members agreed that it will be a difficult job to convince voters of the

The Bible Speaks

From Calvary Baptist Church

AMERICAN DREAM OR NIGHTMARE?

Our forefathers built the American dream upon faith, love, and loyalty to God, home, and country. They honored the eternal values of truth, beauty, and goodness. In less than 200 years, America became the envy and idol of national success.

Following the turn of the century, European Higher Criticism infiltrated our leading universities undermining the authority of God and the Bible. By the 60's, liberal theologians were publicly declaring that "God is Dead." The Bible was declared myth, ancient literature, and mere religious opinion. God, the Bible, and prayer were trashed in public education by judicial review.

To fill the void in organized religion, Secular Humanism merged with Eastern Mysticism to give us the New Age Movement which turns man into his own god. Today, most churches do not put God, the Bible, worship, prayer, and witnessing first. They are human centered, entertainment centered, and emotion centered.

They use Hollywood tactics, big business fund raising, and plain, public deceit. Their idea of success is bigness and popularity. True Bible-believing, Christ-centered, God-honoring churches are considered dry, dead, dusty relics of antiquity, unable to out-gimmick, out-entertain, and out-deceive the hedonistic madness of our age.

A generation ago, Secular Humanists told the world that most personal and family problems were caused by "puritanical dogmas" and "moral codes" which migrate the individual, suppress freedom, dull intellect, dehumanize personality...and unduly repress sexual conduct." They said all sex was good sex as long as consent was given. Suddenly, we entered the New Morality. Permissiveness and unbridled promiscuity became the goal to reach sexual freedom from God's spiritual laws. Today, you answer the question if sex is more healthy, free of fear and guilt, and releasing humans from divine control and limits?

A generation ago, Secular Humanists told us to forget God, and trust scientific and technological development to produce a better life for all humans. Today, nuclear power threatens our annihilation. Industrial pollution threatens our ecology. Our health system faces possible bankruptcy over new sin related diseases. Our freedoms are almost gone in the name of personal rights. We are told our natural resources are running out.

God, the Bible, reason, morality, and righteousness have been replaced by man, opinion, experience, openness, and sin. Americans are moving from a dream into a nightmare.

The Art of Friendship

Friendship is an art.

It is rather easy, as someone observed, to attract people and be attracted by them and develop acquaintances. But it takes an artist to keep the process going until deep friendship happens.

"If friendships were easy," declared Andrew Greeley, "there would be a lot more of them in the world."

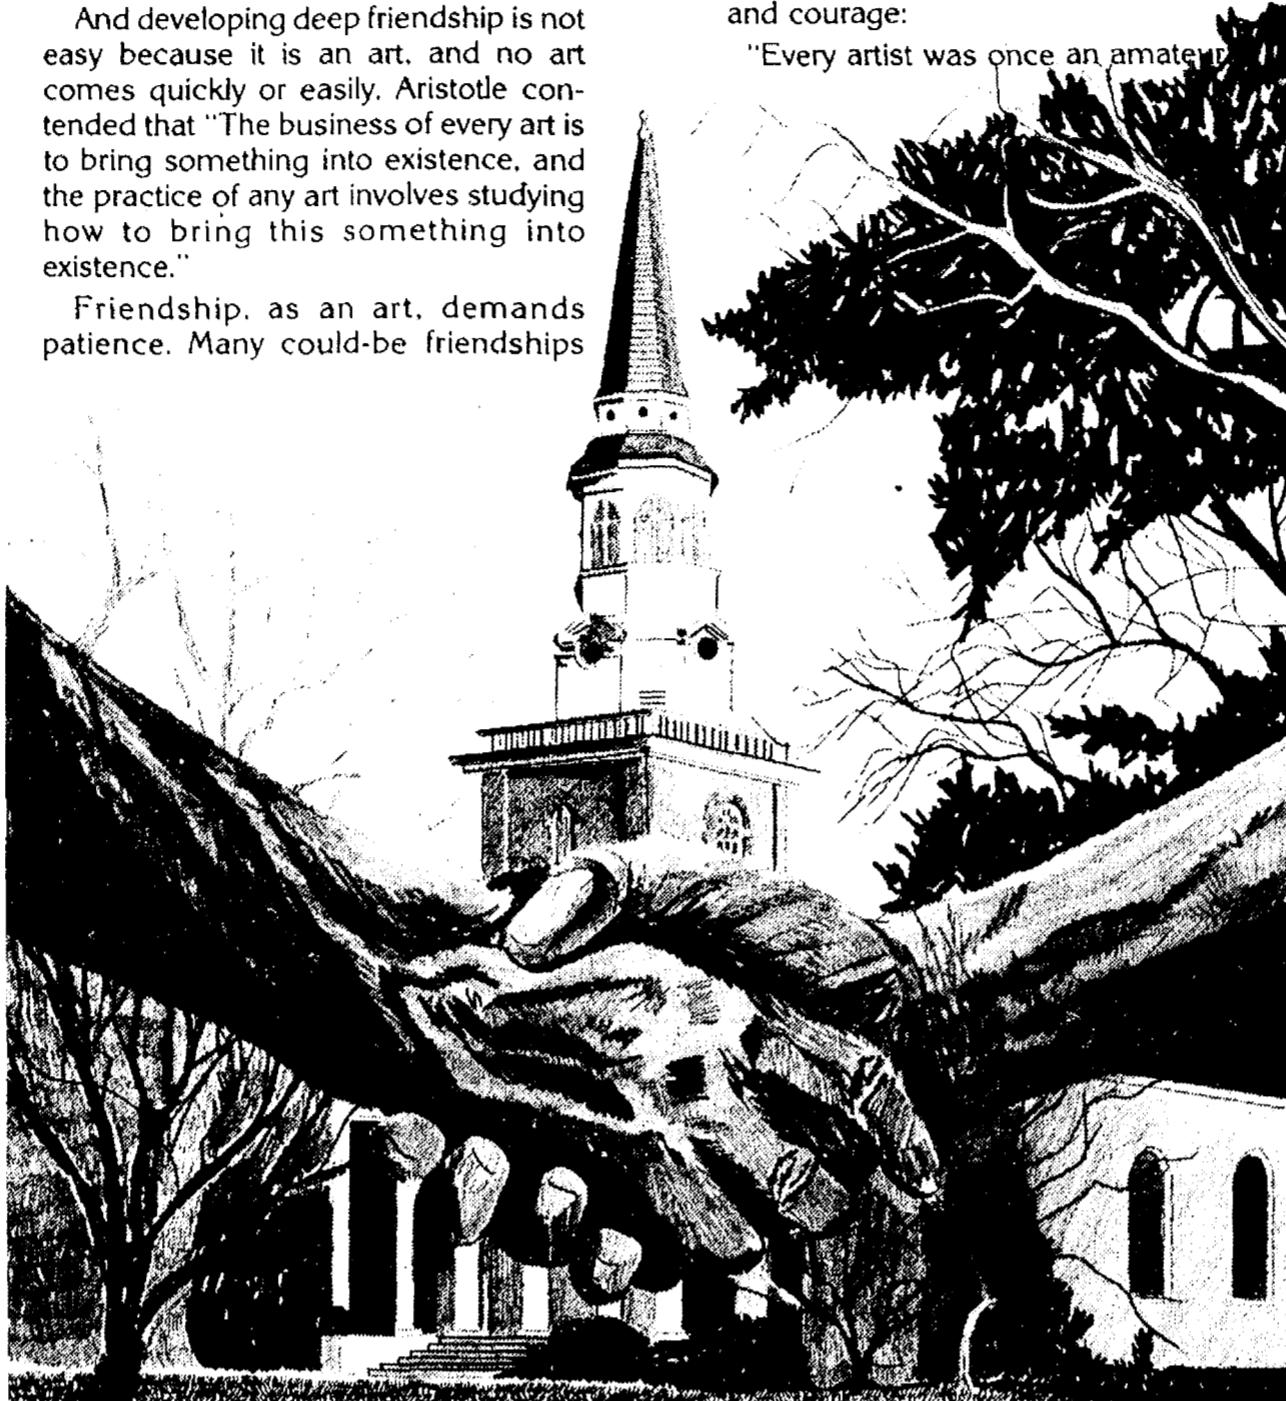

And developing deep friendship is not easy because it is an art, and no art comes quickly or easily. Aristotle contended that "The business of every art is to bring something into existence, and the practice of any art involves studying how to bring this something into existence."

Friendship, as an art, demands patience. Many could-be friendships never happen because people get in a hurry to develop closeness and intimacy. Friendships that rush into intimacy are seldom lasting ones. In our hurried and mobile society we have placed "rush" stickers on the package of friendship without also stenciling "fragile" on it.

Ralph Waldo Emerson gives comfort and courage:

"Every artist was once an amateur."

KCC Library

Offers New Books

The Kirtland Community College Library is featuring fifteen new books, written by popular authors. Among some of the more noteworthy are: "King Arthur: Hero and Legend", by Richard Barber. Barber has been writing on the topic of the once and future king for 25 years, and is an ideal guide to the fascinating evolution of the stories about Arthur and his knights.

"A More Perfect Union" by William Peters. A sweeping narrative with all the drama of good fiction, this book is an accurate, day-by-day account of the pivotal event of American history—the 1787 Convention that drafted the constitution.

As always, the Kirtland library is open to all residents of the four county area. For further information, call 517-275-5121, or toll free 1-800-433-2517.

Red Barn Offers Big Welcome Mat

The Red Barn may look like a barn from the outside but any resemblance to one on the activities inside is out of the question because there is food, entertainment and refreshments.

It was constructed in 1972 by Louis Stillwagon and soon after Jim Shively's brother "Chick" built the motel adjoining the barn. While the motel was under construction there was conversation between Stillwagon and "Chick" about selling the barn. "Chick" was interested but was overextended financially so he formed a partnership with a neighbor in Utica, Michigan.

The two men worked out a contract where each owned 50 percent of the bar and motel. They also had the understanding that Jim would come up and manage the bar. All of these developments took place during the first two months after the opening of the bar.

The formal partnership began in July of 1973 but during the interval Jim managed the bar and continued to do so after the new arrangement took effect. By 1981 through a series of buyouts, Jim Shively owned the Red Barn outright.

Prior to the takeover, Jim met Joanne in April, 1974, while attending a Fisher Body retirement party. As events sometimes happen, Joanne and a lady friend were also associated with the company and decided to attend the party together. The two then dated until May of 1975 when they were married. At that point Joanne moved from her home in Dearborn to join Jim in Grayling and a full time position with the Red Barn.

ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT — The Red Barn now offers musical entertainment virtually every night.

Money Management Skills Important to Women

In the past, many women grew up believing that they did not need to be informed about money management because someone else would take care of it. Today most women will need to manage money either as single persons, single parents as a result of divorce or death, as working persons or as widows. Women need to be informed about financial matters that go beyond the tasks they have usually performed, such as shopping wisely and stretching the household budget, to undertake the full spectrum of budgeting, credit, risk management and preparing for the future.

The general money management tasks are the same regardless of a person's situation, but women have some special circumstances that make it imperative that they manage money effectively:

1. Women earn approximately 59 cents for every $1 that men earn in the marketplace.

2. Single parents generally move into a less favorable financial situation than they had in a two-parent family.

3. Older women tend to have lower retirement benefits than older men.

The goal in money management for women, therefore, is more for their families or themselves rather than more money. Money is only the medium by which a woman achieves goals and provides for herself and her family. The more effectively she manages money, the more money there is to use and the less money is wasted. There is a challenge in money management. A creative, skillful approach gives satisfaction in accomplishing control over money.

A spending plan or budget is the first step in any money management program. Good budgets take into consideration not only the allocation of dollars, but also the time, talents and skills available to make the dollars go further. The skills needed to develop a budget include: Knowledge—to be informed about available resources and the wants and needs of the family.

Planning—establishing goals and guidelines.

Discipline—finding incentives for self-discipline to meet goals.

Time—regular time for attending to the budget.

Most people use credit as a tool to manage money—that is, to purchase needs today that will be paid off of future income. Equal access to credit was granted under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act. This act prohibits discrimination because of sex, marital status, race, national origin, religion, age or the fact that one receives income from a public assistance program.

Dealing with financial security is an important task for women of all ages.

Women need to understand the importance of establishing credit in their own names and being sure that any credit that is assumed jointly will be reported in both persons' names. Check your record at a local credit bureau. If your credit history is not accurate, contact creditors to make sure that it is being correctly reported.

Risk management is another major area of money management that women must consider. If you are working, it is important to understand protection provided by a fringe benefit program. Is life, health or property insurance provided? These must be dovetailed with any private insurance you carry.

On the outside, the building is the same size and shape as it was when originally constructed. Inside, however, the bar size was made considerably larger in 1977 when the party store that once was housed under the same roof went out of business. Inside walls were torn down and additional bar space was made for more tables and a game room.

Jim said that when the bar first opened steaks and hamburgers were the full extent of the food offerings. When the Shivelys took over, they added to the menu little by little each year.

Finally the Red Barn served a full menu, Shively noted. When disco music became popular, the crowds were so thick that the food customers had to be eased out when dance time came. He said that there would be 100 people waiting in the lobby for the music to begin. At that point they stopped serving all but sandwiches.

After two years they returned to serving steaks or ribs, Shively said. He commented that the snowmobilers, deer hunters or horsemen wanted something to eat and did not care to get dressed up to go into town.

Speaking of snowmobilers, Joanne said that a pet project of the Red Barn is renting ceiling tile in the establishment for the benefit of Special Olympics. She noted that a person pays $10 to have their name on one of the tiles. If they desire something fancy, it is their responsibility to employ someone to paint it.

Last year they contributed $5,000 to the cause and this year hope to better that record. Joanne said that last February, Wertz's Warriors stopped at the establishment to join the Shivelys for a steak dinner. The warriors snowmobiled up the entire state raising money for the Special Olympics. Joanne said that a large group of them spent the evening and had a great time.

The Shivelys said that people seem to be very comfortable when they come to the Red Barn. Groups such as the special experimental team from Honeywell that spent three winters in the area, have gravitated to the barn. The group from Germany that set up equipment for Weyerhaeuser also spent a great deal of spare time there, Jim noted. He believes that the employees' friendliness has a good deal to do with the welcome people feel.

Jim said that anyone traveling through the area finds it easy to stop off because of the vast parking lot and the access to roads. He said that when the dog sled racers came to town they had sufficient room to permit the dogs to sleep in the parking lot all night.

Joanne said that they have a good rapport with the National Guard and they cooperate with the establishment. She told about an incident where a Provost Marshall knocked on the door one morning before the place opened. The Shivelys wondered what was wrong and upon opening the door found that they were invited to the Indiana Adjutant General's office party that night.

The Shivelys said that they are pleased with the relationship with the guard. They commented that there never has been a problem with the guard in the barn.

Business at the Red Barn has continued a steady increase, not only because of the guard but because the word has spread over the county about the comfortable location and the band. The number of nights that entertainment has been offered has increased from one or two per week until it has reached six or seven nights at times. All year the barn offers music at least five nights per week, Tuesday through Saturday. At first Brian Ashton and Southern Pride was booked in occasionally, but now they are the house band, Jim said. They play the top 40 Country Westerns with some easy rock once in a while, he noted. They are very popular locally and many downstate people have stated it is a better group than they have been able to find at home.

In the past, the Red Barn has hosted the Milltown Kickoff Dinner and the Grayling Rotary Club dinner-rafle. They have also held the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner and other major town events.

Shively observed that the horse Trail Riders Association has regular jaunts on the cross Michigan horse trail and they make it a point to stop off at the Red Barn.

The most unusual occurrence that shook the Red Barn was the smoke bomb that was deposited in the game room one evening. Jim said that he saw something smoking on the windowsill and walked over to push it off. It rolled under the machines and then really began to smoke. It was impossible to see in the room and the smoke was choking, he explained. They chalked up the bomb to a rare prankster and the entertainment followed as soon as the room was cleared of smoke.

The Shively's future plans are to continue as things are going now as they welcome local residents, travelers, snowmobilers, horsemen, hunters and the national guard to join them for an evening's entertainment with the band and a crew of 12 employees who are truly happy to have them come to the Red Barn.
